MEDICINAL. IT FOLLOWS AFTER

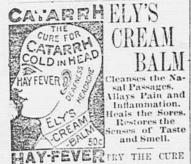

-a disordered liver—that you're subject to attacks of cold or chills on slight exposure. You get "tired" easily. The feeling is accompanied by a "tired" digestion, which fails to assimilate the food. This often results in what we call indigestion or Biliousness.

Dr. Pierco's Piensant Peliets rouse the liver to vicorous action, and this in turn starts the machinery of the bedy into activity. Liver, stomach and bowels feel the tonic effect, and in consequence the entire system is invigorated. The processes become self-regulating, and a reserve force is stored up against exposure to disease.

If you're too thin, too weak or nervous, it must be that food assimilation is wrong.

Gen. Longstreet has been venting his spite against his former comrades into the credulous ears of a newspaper reporter.

He disparages Gen. Lee, and shows how, if Gen. Lee had been guided by ier and brilliant wit, "that any question A particle is applied into each nostril and is involving mental process and intelligrecable. Price 50 cents at druggists; by gence should be hidden from Lee and patent to Longstreet, is a startling proposition to any who have a knowledge of the two men. We have biblical authority for the story that the angel in the path was visible to the ass but invisible to the seer, his master. But had the humble, stupid ass, after having always been kindly treated by his master, turned around and kicked him, how would the story have read then?"

The question now recurs with accu mulated interest, and makes us reverto the early days of the great war be-tween the States, when Gen. Long-street imparted to President Davis his misgivings as to Lee's fitness to com-mand the great Army of Northern Virginia, and suggested that he (Longstret) was the man for that high office.

How greatly he was mistaken the re-

Under Johnston and under Lee he was a brave and efficient commander of his corps, but whenever removed from their strong and able guidance he was a lı mentable failure.

He had, thanks to their fostering care and wise guidance, won a noble name among a race of noble men—but in his mental and moral obtuseness he did not know its value, and threw it all away mind our people of what I know of Longstreet's tergiveration.

The first intimation of it was when he said to me in 1865—our President was then in prison—"Maury, Jeff Davis and the politicians made catspaws of you and me and the officers of the regular service." I replied, with indignant surprise, "No human influence could have controlled my action after Virginia seceded. Mr. Davis obeyed our call, ished a letter in the Sunday newspa-pers of New Orleans, obscurely indicat-ing his political views and purposes. It startled our southern people, but so highly was he held, because of his great war record, that all public comment was suspended. The southern press general went around and summoned us Confederates to a meeting in Longstreet's office, to be held on Wednesday evening. Some, out of respect to the honorable record he had until then up-Circulars from Guarantee issued only by our ex-clusive agent.

The intervening Sunday Longstreet, grown bolder, published a more ex-plicit article, outspoken in favor of our coalition with the Grant party of the North. Then the vials of wrath of the whole southern press and people were poured out upon him and he was generally tabooed.

Soon after this Senator Wilson, of Massachusetts, came to Louisiana. Longstreet went up to Amite, met him, came with him to the city, and sat upon the platform with him as a vice presi

Square. After that he went over body and bones to the radical party, marched in procession with the negroes and baser whites, dined with them, and worst of all his vileness, he commanded the soldiers to shoot down his former com rades and friends in the streets of New

And now, in the evening of his days when his thoughts should be turned to repentance, he reiterates his senile as persion of Lee and Jackson, whose great fame mankind will ever adore.
Poor old Longstreet! He ought to have more sense!
